So many things left unsaid and it makes my heart ache. We always ended a visit or conversation with an "I Love You" How I want to hear those words come from your mouth again big brother. I lost a part of myself. I never knew how big of a part until excised. Leaving a wound that stretches from the middle of my rib cage to the bottom of my gut. It's so hard to believe that someone who had as much energy as Billy did, can be gone now. In so many ways he was immortal to me. When I think of him, I always think of infinite existence. I wish he was here with me to build one last for in which I could hide from all the pain and hurt. Billy built up his own walls. How else are you supposed to protect a heart that no matter how broad your shoulders grow, it's to big for your own chest. A heart that returned hurt with twice as much love. From inside his fort, I dont know if billy could see how much he was loved. But I know Billy WAS LOVED! My brother loved more then any of us asked for or even earned. Inside him was gentleness and talent, goodness and love that lit up his eyes even in his darkest moments. But to share that light with others and have it rejected would have been to much for him to ear. So he built up his walls to hide it away. So I will mourn all the times I won't be able to tell Billy I love him. I will wear Billy's name etched across my heart as a reminder of the love I was so lucky to recieve from him and a promise to tell the people I love just how special they are, no matter how many times I've told them before. I LOVE you and Miss you, today and every day until we meet again big brother. I know your with Daddy and Suzanne and I know you are at peace. XoXo

"There's a very special garden where the trees of memory grow
Nurtured by the kindness
And concern that good friends show
The roots are cherished memories of good times in the past

The branches tender promises that souls endure and last
It's a place of peace and beauty
Where bright new hopes can start
It's memory's lovely garden That soothes the hurting heart"
~Unknown

May you rest in peace my friend
